Howard Manwaring and John Raukar

Two of the most sought after speakers in the Western United States will present their hard hitting classes designed to teach about the dangers of drug and alcohol abuse, gangs, and bullying. Their personal experiences in dealing with these problems are both emotional and educational. They drive the point home when they tell their heart-wrenching experiences. Manwaring and Raukar will be providing a class at the Partnership in Education Conference. The course is worth one graduate or undergraduate credit through Idaho State University. * Fees: $75.00 registration fee and $ 50.00 ISU credit fee, for a total of $125.00.

Professional-Technical

The Professional-Technical Education (PTE) strand of the Partnerships in Education (PIE) Conference will provide workshops and industry tours in specific content areas. Other sessions will focus on the integration of academic and contextual learning, exploration of tomorrow's jobs, and identifying ways to help high school students' transition from secondary to postsecondary to the workforce.

Some of this year's specific content areas include:

- Manufacturing with SolidWorks
- Geographic Information Systems
- Web Development with Microsoft Expressions
- Green Technologies
- Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM) education/careers, and many more.

Featured Presentations

Health Education Curriculum analysis Tool (HECAT)

K-12 Health Education and Administrators –Dr. Jean Mee

The HECAT workshop helps schools select or develop effective health education curricula, enhance existing curricula, and improve delivery of health education.

Promoting Awareness of Motivational Incentives (PAMI): Helping High Risk Youth in the Classroom A special full-day workshop! Fri. Oct. 2

–Robert A. Hayes, ACADC, DAPA Presenter

A special full-day workshop! This interactive presentation will help educators, counselors, coaches and family members and people working with high-risk situations due to substance abuse disorders. We will discuss the importance of the systems of rewards and punishment, as well as how to encourage pro-social thinking and interactions. Emphasis will be focused on better attendance, better engagement and successes in the classroom and other social settings. Administrators: This is an excellent faculty development for your counselors and your teachers at your alternative schools.

Apangea Software Program –Glen Zollman

Two training sessions: Thur. Oct. 1, (3 hrs. a.m., and 3 hrs. p.m.)

Apangea is a software program that allows students to practice math problem solving. The program has several systems that allow the student to receive help. These help tools end with a person talking with the student and providing a tutorial.

“Why Try?” - Ending Failure & Truancy –J. Allen

Thur. Oct. 1, & Repeat Fri. Oct. 2, (3 hrs. a.m.)

This presentation provides the audience with several methods to teach emotional intelligence and life skills. Participants will learn how to empower youth to overcome poverty, violence and failure; take the challenges they face and channel them in a positive direction; and help them build a positive support system. The program presented is proven to increase graduation rates, reduce truancy, and improve school climate.

Ideas and Details With Heart and Power –Jane Kurtz

Everyone knows that excellent writing often starts with a good idea, but how can students find ideas that are fresh, focused, and fine tuned? Award-winning author Jane Kurtz will use handouts and examples from student writing and mentor texts to illustrate three ways young writers can learn to select just-right ideas and vivid details.

Strong Readers, Strong Writers: Making Deep Connections

–Jane Kurtz

Good writers learn to show and not tell. Good readers learn to infer. What's the connection? Jane Kurtz will use examples and tips from her work from writing about African monkeys to creating several characters for American Girl novels to show how a deep understanding of reading comprehension strategies, and writing traits and processes lead to growth in student literacy.

Two PE Guys – Thur. Oct. 1 & Fri Oct. 2

These sessions, available to classroom teachers and physical education specialists, will cover a wide variety of fun activities, with an emphasis on maximum participation for all ability and age levels.
